

during COVID-19 isolation

What we need to live healthily in isolation:

- 1) Food
- 2) Health
- 3) Adaptability
- 4) Comfort
- 5) Nature
- 6) Activity
- 7) Community

How To Play

- Pile the GO-TO cards in Bunyip State Park, with GO-TO side down.
- Each player puts a marker on a town (one marker per town = social distancing).
- Turn over the GO-TO card pile. Take the top one, keeping the GO-TO side upwards. Do what it says.
- Count how many towns you go through to get there. (If there is a marker already on the town you are sent to, stop at the town before it and don't count it in your score.)
- Take turns until everyone has collected seven cards.
- The person with the LOWEST score wins.

Part two (Aim - for each player to have cards from all 7 categories)

- Use the picture side of the GO-TO cards (don't show the other player's cards).
- Ask the player on your left, "Are you okay?" They tell you what they need.
- Make a swap ONLY if you have a spare card in that category.
- Deduct one point from your previous score if you give them the card they need for one they choose to give you.
- If you cannot help, they pick up a card from the GO-TO pile then place it under the pile and no one's score will change for that turn.
- Help each other to interpret the pictures and see how they might be useful.
- When everyone has what they need, compare the scores. The lowest score wins.

A Part Together

Connecting Cardinia Shire

This collaborative community arts project was created by Jenni L. Ivins in 2020 with the support of the Star News Group and a COVID-19 Arts Response Grant from Cardinia Shire Council.

The A Part Together game was developed with the community in Cardinia Shire, which is on the traditional lands of the Bunurong/Boon Wurrung and Wurundjeri People of the Kulin Nation. We pay our respects to their elders, past, present and emerging.
